Keynote Speakers

Mike Artell has written/illustrated more than 35 books for children, parents and teachers. His book Petite Rouge – A Cajun Red Riding Hood was named the 2009 Read Aloud Book of the Year by the National Association of Elementary School Principals. It was also the winner of the Louisiana Young Readers Choice Award as well as many other awards for writing and illustration. In addition, Artell has written award-winning science, wordplay, how-to, and professional books. He has spoken at conferences of the International Reading Association, the National Middle School Association, National Association of Elementary School Principals, Prevent Child Abuse Texas, National Association for the Education of Young Children, Federal Programs Associations, gifted student organizations and a variety of other educational, healthcare and training conferences. Some of his non-fiction titles include Starry Skies: Questions, Facts, and Riddles About the Universe and The Earth and Me: A Kid’s Guide to Ecology.

See next page for more keynote speakers.
Keynote Speakers

Born in a hogan and raised on Dineh’ land, known as the Navajo Nation, Shonto Begay began professionally writing, illustrating, and painting in 1983. Represented in galleries and museums worldwide, Begay writes that his work “captures the striking beauties of a traditional Navajo upbringing and the harsh realities of modern reservation life. Images harken heartfelt childhood memories and resonate the constant struggle for balance and harmony with humankind and the Earth.” He worked as a National Park Service ranger at Grand Teton National Park in Wyoming and the Navajo National Monument in Arizona. Begay speaks to audiences of all ages about inspiration and the importance of education and embracing cultural backgrounds. His art has been exhibited in solo shows at the Museum of Northern Arizona, Arizona State Museum, Utah Museum of Fine Arts, The Wheelwright Museum of the American Indian in Santa Fe, the American Indian Contemporary Arts Museum in San Francisco, and the Phoenix Art Museum. He has illustrated several books including The Mud Pony, The Magic of Spider Woman, and Alice Yazzie’s Year.

Susan Nees is the author and illustrator of the Missy’s Super Duper Royal Deluxe chapter book series for emerging readers published by Scholastic Press. She graduated with honors from the University of the Arts in Philadelphia and has also received the American Institute of Graphic Arts Award. Her artwork can be found in a number of collections including the Low Library of Columbia University and in special collections at Princeton. In addition to her chapter book series, Nees creates comics that she posts on her website and has illustrated the soon to be released It’s Me, Clover, written by Lola Schaefer. She lives in Watkinsville, Georgia, is a member of SCBWI, and is represented by Tracey Adams of Adams Literary Agency.

Jennifer Sattler received her BFA in painting from the University of New Hampshire and her MFA from Indiana University, Bloomington, Hope School of Fine Arts. She worked for several years as a landscape painter and professor of painting and drawing. But the birth of her first child, Mayzie, drew her to the world of illustrating children’s books. “I couldn’t wait to read to Mayzie,” says Sattler. “She slept most of the time, but I kept reading, silly voices and all! The magic of picture books excited me so much more than making pictures to hang on the wall.” Sattler began drawing elephants, as they were Mayzie’s favorite animals at the time. A year later, her first book for children was published. She has exhibited extensively, winning a National Endowment for the Arts grant in 1996. Ms. Sattler is the author/illustrator of Sylvie, winner of the 2014 GCBA Picturebook Award.

Clare Vanderpool is the award-winning author of two novels: Moon Over Manifest and her newly released Navigating Early. Moon Over Manifest, her debut novel, was awarded the prestigious 2011 John Newbery Award, making Vanderpool the first debut author in thirty years to win the award. Her books have both hit the New York Times best seller list as well as the Book Sense best seller list. The recipient of much critical-acclaim, including seven starred reviews, a top ten Historical Fiction Kid’s Book by Instructor Magazine, a Junior Library Guild selection, and a Golden Spur award, Vanderpool’s writing has connected with readers young and old. Interviews with the author have appeared in the New York Times, The Washington Post, USA Today, and almost all of the media outlets across the nation have covered her writing career. Most recently, her second novel Navigating Early was named a Printz Honor Book for Young Adult Fiction by the American Library Association.
Concurrent Session One

Author Workshop: The Evolution of a Story
Clare Vanderpool (Note: Author workshops require separate registration)

Room R

Experience the Museum-School Education Model Through the Museum in a Box Program
Jennifer Price, The Museum School
Ashlee Beebee, The Museum School

Make classroom lessons tangible and boost comprehension and vocabulary using interdisciplinary learning trunks that are rich in nonfiction texts and contain hundreds of artifacts, maps, costumes, books, scientific tools, and historical documents. Examples of trunks will be available to look through and sample book lists will be shared.

Room Q

Teamwork -Even if You Are the Only Player On the Field
Teresa Jones, West Georgia Regional Library System
Duffie Yarbrough, West Georgia Regional Library System

Have you ever wondered how it would be if you could work more closely with other libraries in your region, sharing resources, having willing substitutes for storytimes, even having access to start-to-finish storytime kits? This workshop will show you how to get started.

Room K

Early Literacy Program for Teens
Kacy Tedder, Clarke Central High School

This presentation will highlight the framework for how to successfully implement an Early Literacy Program for teen mothers, expectant teens, and/or primary caretakers of young children in the home. Identified as a need among high school students at Clarke Central High School, early literacy strategies, as well as young adult literature will be explored to help teens navigate through being a teen caregiver. Resources from the community will also be highlighted.

Room L

HOW Much Would YOU Swallow a Key For? A Look at Joey Pigza
Maima Chea, Georgia State University
Matthew Bryant, Georgia State University

This presentation will provide strategies to captivate diverse elementary learners with children’s literature, specifically the Joey Pigza series. This session will provide take-a-ways that incorporate Common Core (3rd-5th grades) and will allow students to interact, be creative, and grasp key concepts from the text by “doing” rather than simply studying.

Room T/U

Critical Perspectives on Historical Fiction for Children and Young Adults
Anne McLeod, Burney-Harris-Lyons Middle School
Chandra Power, Anita White Carson Middle School

Depictions of history, even in award-winning books, can be problematic, as authors may neglect certain perspectives. The panelists will discuss their research in historical fiction and encourage participants to reflect on how critical approaches to literature help teachers and students better understand past and present.

Room V/W

Who Are the International Representatives? An Examination of NCTE Orbis Pictus Award-Winning Biographical Titles
Ying Cui, University of Georgia

In this interactive session, I will share the results from examining 18 biographical texts featuring international individuals awarded the NCTE Orbis Pictus Award for Outstanding Nonfiction for Children (1986-2014) to explore whose biographies are expected to help children find a ‘role model’ for pursuing their own dreams.

Room Y/Z
Concurrent Session Two

Author Workshop: Book It! Creating Books With Kids
Susan Nees (Note: Author workshops require separate registration)

GCBA (2015-2016) Picturebook Nominees: Classroom Applications and Standards Connections

Georgia Children's Picture Storybook Award Committee Members:
Jennifer Graff, University of Georgia
Eric Carpenter, Westside Atlanta Charter School
Melissa Castle, Parkwood Elementary School
Michelle Fitzgerald, Hightower Trail Elementary School
Jennifer Lewis, Indian Knoll Elementary School
Lindy Moore, Dog River Public Library
Dera Weaver, Winterville Elementary School

In this interactive session, Georgia Children's Book Award (GCBA) Picturebook Award committee members will share how you can easily integrate the 2015-2016 picturebook nominees into your curricula! A range of standards-based classroom ideas and creative applications will be highlighted. Handouts of the instructional ideas will be available for all session attendees.

New Worlds: Connect and Inspire With Historical Fiction
Annette Laing, Author and Historian

In this interactive session Dr. Laing will share with participants how time-travel and historical fiction inspire readers’ responses and enhance their personal and intellectual lives. You will also learn how to connect historical fiction with students’ experiences, and turn their interest into action in service-learning oral history projects.

Diversifying Female Representation: Getting Critical with YA Graphic and Dystopian Texts
Jennifer J. Whitley, University of Georgia
Margaret Robbins, University of Georgia

Women (particularly women of color) are getting more recognition for their roles as female protagonists, particularly in the graphica/comics genre and in Dystopian YA Literature. This presentation will explore graphic novels and Dystopian YA literature with strong female protagonists and suggest classroom activities for implementing instruction.

What Are We Arguing For? Just Use Mentor Texts for Opinion/Argumentative Writing
Shoney Brice, West Haralson Elementary School

“What are we arguing for?” will address how to effectively teach writing opinion/argumentative writing using mentor texts. This workshop will include why, how, and when to use mentor texts and tips on how to select mentor texts. This session will help teachers to move students pass the “logic limbo.”

Serving Hard Time vs. Serving Hard Cover Texts: African American Males and Literacy Development
Linda Wall, University of North Carolina, Wilmington

This discussion offers culturally relevant pedagogy that places literature as central to literacy learning for African American males. These P12 text sets allow African American males to see themselves, family, and peers in relevant and engaging literature that supports comprehension skills. The texts travel across time and genres as they grapple with themes of self-concepts, social justice and racial pride featuring males of African descent from around the globe.
Roll Out the Red Carpet for Reading
Deana Dunn, Rabun County Middle School
Kelly Earnest, Rabun County High School

Celebrate the excitement of the novels your students are enjoying when they are converted to the silver screen. Our schools have been hosting Premier Parties for movie openings for a few years now and they are nothing but pure fun and promote excitement about reading.

Concurrent Session Three

Author Workshop: “Look What YOU Did!” Teaching Your Kids How to Make a Book
Jennifer Sattler (Note: Author workshops require separate registration)

Georgia Book (Gr. 4-8) Award Committee Members:
Denise Davila, University of Georgia
Joy Frerichs, Cedar Ridge School, Antioch Elementary School, Dalton Public Library
Terrie Gribanow, Dearing Elementary School
Janice Kelley, Shallowford Falls Elementary School
Bev Kodak, Ola Middle School
Eileen Lynch, Double Churches Middle School
Amie Pilla, Dekalb County Public Library
Erin Rehberg, Thomas County Upper Elementary and Middle Schools

In this interactive session, Georgia Children’s Book Award (GCBA) Book Award committee members will share how you can easily integrate the 2015-2016 book nominees into your curricula! A range of standards-based classroom ideas and creative applications will be highlighted. Handouts of the instructional ideas will be available for all session attendees.

Not Your Average Book Club
Jennifer Parker, East Hall Middle School

Do you want to take your school book club to the next level? Find out about Tome Student Literacy Society during this interactive session with the media specialists who founded the organization. Tome Society merges book discussions, digital competitions, student networking and more in a vibrant student club for middle and high school students!

Conservation Themes in YA Literature
SR Johannes, Author

This is a discussion workshop where we will look at conservation themes in today’s literature (Hatchet, Hoot, etc) and discuss the upcoming trend of environmental books and why they are important to teens. Additionally, we will discuss how environment changes impact book themes: connection to the natural world, protecting the environment, and post-apocalyptic settings where the disaster was environmental.

Write ON! Integrating Writing into Your Media Program
Sarah Mayberry, Morgan Elementary School

This session will include practical and fun ways to implement writing into the library media program. Strategies will focus on writing that integrates fiction and nonfiction reading. This session will also highlight ways that technology can effectively assist writing in the media center.
QR Codes: They’re Not Just for Advertisements Anymore!
Jen McCrimage, Hiram College

In this session, hear about the use of QR Codes to enhance your classroom library, students’ writing, and even home/school partnerships! Come participate in an interactive session where you will learn from and with early childhood pre-service teachers from Hiram College in Hiram, OH - and bring your tablets and smartphones!

Literacy Leaders and Magnificent Mathematicians: Integrating the Book of the Month with Math Exemplars
Katherine Stieber, Fair Oaks Elementary School
Robin Bearden, Fair Oaks Elementary School

This session will focus on how Fair Oaks integrates the schoolwide Book of the Month with a math exemplar. All students K-5 complete a written response to the Book of the Month, as well as solve a standards based mathematical word problem related to the book.

Concurrent Session Four

Author Workshop: Storytelling Through Art
Shonto Begay (Note: Author workshops require separate registration)

Learn how school, public and university librarians collaborate in promoting independent reading by Using the Helen Ruffin Reading Bowl (HRRB)
Barbara Hallstrom, Georgia HRRB State Steering Committee
Mary Etta Thomas, Co-Chair Georgia HRRB
Sue Ann Prigge, Co-Chair DeKalb County HRRB
Donna Jones, Co-Chair DeKalb County HRRB
Wendy Smith, Fulton County HRRB

This interactive presentation will include a brief history of the Georgia Helen Ruffin Reading Bowl, including how HRRB has expanded to include collaboration between public, school, and university librarians to provide the needed expertise to instill a love of independent reading in the HRRB competitors.

Book Hacking: (Re)Making Stories
Jaye Johnson Thiel, University of Tennessee, Knoxville
Stephani Phelps, University of Tennessee, Knoxville

Have you ever wished you could alter a story’s characters? Setting? Illustrations? Well, maybe you can! In this interactive session, participants will explore the concept of children’s book hacking as a way to engage in playful literacy practices that also have the power to challenge social inequities.

Building Literacy Boards with Discovery Education
Tomiko Cobb-Jean, Dunbar Elementary School

Explore innovative ways for students to demonstrate an understanding of literacy concepts. Board Builder engages your students in higher levels of thinking as they create online posters (Board Builder) to show their level of understanding about the content under investigation. In this session, participants will learn to combine text, images, audio, and video to tell stories that make information “stick.”
Survival of the Young Adult “Lit”est: Using YA Literature in the Classroom
Brittany Cuenin, Lander University

“Here’s some advice. Stay alive.” This YA literature interactive session will look at multiple ways to create a thematic literary journey of survival in the classroom. From The Giver to The Hunger Games, we’ll discuss these books, how the characters survive, and how young adults relate. Using these themes and examples, we’ll explore a variety of strategies and ways to incorporate these books into literature, language arts, and writing classes.

Creating Dynamic, Community-Driven Storytimes that Get Results!
Jonathan Dolce, Athens-Clarke County Library

Creating dynamic, community-driven storytimes can be accomplished easily and at no additional cost. Come hear - and participate in how you can utilize multimedia as well as traditional storytime elements - puppet shows, skits, and inject culture - to keep consistently high numbers of patrons coming and boosting circulation.

History in My Own Backyard!
Kathleen O’Keefe, Piedmont College
Ansley Green, Faith Christian Academy

This workshop presents ideas on how to use local historical sites to teach social studies and language arts standards in the elementary classroom. Suggestions for units, technology, literature and Georgia sites will be included.

Concurrent Session Five

Author Workshop: Classroom Cartooning for the Artistically Challenged
Mike Artell (Note: Author workshops require separate registration)

The Animosity of an Award: Actuality Versus Acclaim
Alexandra Lampp, University of Georgia

Through the visual and tactile exploration of the winners of the Dolly Gray Children’s Literature Award, this interactive session explores the ways in which learning (dis)abilities are ideologically and socially constructed by and for non(dis)abled individuals. After a short, hands-on preview of each text, attendees of this panel are welcome to offer their insights and critical eyes to the ongoing discussion regarding (dis)ability in young adult fiction.

Muggles Can Make Magic, Too!--Turning Non-Readers into Readers and Writers in the Classroom
Dennis Jolley, Cherokee High School and Kennesaw State University

How many times have you heard a kid say they don’t like to read? If you’re like us, we have heard too many. This practical panel will illustrate how one local school has used YA Literature to create a culture of literacy. YA Literature, author visits, and creative writing have transformed our school.

Sponsors

Special thanks to the following who provided sponsorships for this year’s conference!

Society of Children’s Book Writers and Illustrators (SCBWI Southern Breeze)
Bound to Stay Bound Books
Literature Based Collaborative Writing in the Primary Grades
Diane Mergelle, West Jackson Primary School
Bronwyn Sheffield, West Jackson Primary School

Can even the youngest writers be successful in collaborative groups to complete creative, literature-based writing projects? Absolutely! Two kindergarten teachers host a workshop demonstrating how this can be achieved, while increasing student engagement, motivation, and self-confidence. Participants view authentic student work and receive lesson plans with suggested literature lists.

Little Free Libraries: What, Where, Why?
Marianne Snow, University of Georgia

This interactive session will focus on Little Free Libraries, a very popular resource for sharing children’s literature in the United States and around the world. The session attendees and I will discuss potential benefits and problematic elements of these libraries and brainstorm ways to make them as effective as possible.

Implementing Interdisciplinarity: Teaching the Scientific Method through Literature in the Kindergarten Classroom
Sara Janda, University of Georgia
Cristina Valencia Mazzanti, University of Georgia

In this practitioner-oriented seminar we will discuss how the inquisitive character and investigate story lines in Rob Scotton’s Splat the Cat series enables teachers and students to learn about, identify, and practice engaging in the scientific method. This seminar will include instructional plans that cover both literary and science standards.

STEM + LMC
Rose Konouck, Midvale Elementary School
Mary Kay Will, Laurel Ridge Elementary School

Science, Technology, and Engineering do not seem like natural partners for fiction texts and folktales. The presenters will offer ideas and suggestions for integrating picture books, stories, and folktales within the context of the STEM curriculum.
